NEW PHIL COURSE

- Clinical Ethics and Law- PHIL 467/667
In the College of Arts & Sciences, the Department of Philosophy is offering a new online course this fall called, “Clinical Ethics and Law” – PHIL467/667. This course explores ethical and legal dilemmas that emerge in clinical care settings, where doctors’ focus on physical functioning and longevity collides with patients/families’ life values, beliefs, and preferences. Students will learn conflict resolution strategies that align with relevant laws, regulations, and societal moral consensus. CLICK HERE for more information!

CHEMISTRY BIOLOGY INTERFACE PROGRAM

The Chemistry Biology Interface Program is a group of scientists interested in solving biomedical relevant questions. We meet each week, hold symposiums and engage with the larger community. If you would like to receive information about our events, please fill out this brief survey and we will assure that you are added to the “CBI Community List Serve”.
